REEXAMINATION INFORMATION

(13800 - 13801 California Vehicle Code Sections)

DMV has the authority to investigate and reexamine your ability to operate a motor vehicle safely due to a physical or mental condition, or a poor driving record. DMV receives information from many sources, such as: physicians, unsolicited letters, or law enforcement.

DURING THE REEXAMINATION:

The Driver Safety Hearing Officer may ask a wide range of questions about your driving history and about specific incidents on your driving record, questions about your health and medical history. Questions will also be asked about the rules of the road and how you would handle specific driving situations.

You may be asked to provide medical reports from your physician, medical records, or similar documents. All information concerning your health and medical history are confidential by law, and the department cannot divulge this information to any outside party.

NOTE: All Driver Safety contacts are recorded.

REQUIRED TESTS:

You may be required to submit to a vision test, a written test of your knowledge of the rules of the road, and a driving test. You may want to review the California Driver's Handbook to prepare for the evaluation.

If a driving test is required as part of the reexamination process, you will be scheduled for a separate driving test appointment. A licensed driver should accompany you to your driving test appointment. If you do not hold a valid driver license, you must be accompanied by a licensed driver. When taking a driving test, you must provide a vehicle in which to take the test. The vehicle must be currently registered and in proper working order. You must present minimum liability coverage under the authority of Vehicle Code Section 12804.9(a)(1)(D). After the driving test, the examiner will discuss your driving performance and give you a copy of the driving test results.

POSSIBLE DECISIONS FOLLOWING THE REEXAMINATION:

The Driver Safety Hearing Officer decides whether any action should be taken against your driving privilege in the interest of public safety. If so, such action may be a restriction, probation, suspension, or revocation of the driving privilege. You will be notified in writing of the decision and would have the right to a hearing to contest any adverse action.

If you do not appear for the reexamination as scheduled, your driving privilege will be suspended under the authority of Vehicle Code Section 13801, until such time as you do appear and complete the reexamination.

More information may be obtained from the DMV website at: <http://www.dmv.ca.gov/>

You are being asked to appear for a reexamination because the department has received information regarding a condition that may affect your ability to operate a motor vehicle safely. The following information is provided to guide you through the reexamination process and offer answers to frequently asked questions.

How Does DMV Determine if I Need a Reexamination?

DMV is required by law to investigate and reexamine your ability to operate a motor vehicle safely due to the reporting of a physical or mental condition or certain entries on your driving record. DMV receives information from many sources, such as:

- Your physician or surgeon
- Emergency medical personnel
- Unsolicited letters from family members, friends, or neighbors
- A law enforcement officer
- A request for a priority reexamination from a peace officer
- Your driver license application or renewal-by-mail or internet
- Your driving record

What Happens if DMV Decides I Should Be Reexamined?

Once DMV is made aware that you have a medical condition that may cause a potential driving risk to yourself or others, or your driving record indicates negligent driving activity, DMV will evaluate you to ensure you can drive safely. DMV may do one or more of the following:

- Request medical information from you
- Conduct a "regular" reexamination
- Conduct a "priority" reexamination
- Take an immediate suspension or revocation action of your driving privilege
- Administer a vision, written, and drive test

What Decision Can DMV Make After a Reexamination?

After a reexamination, the DMV hearing officer will take one of the following administrative actions:

- No Action
- Medical Probation (Type I)
- Medical Probation (Type II)
- Calendar Reexamination
- Restriction
- Suspension
- Revocation

What if DMV Takes an Action Against My Driving Privilege?

DMV will notify you in writing of:

- Any action taken
- Your legal rights

What Happens if I Do Not Appear for the Reexamination?

If you do not personally appear for and complete the reexamination as scheduled (either by telephone or in person), your driving privilege will be suspended. The suspension will remain in effect until you appear, provide the requested information, and/or submit to any required tests.
